Rob Taylor and his Italian girlfriend Marina went on vacation in Bali in November 2003. They had a great time. They went scuba diving and ate delicious food in nice, cheap restaurants. When they got back home to Prague, they booked their next vacation, this time to Phuket in Thailand in December 2004.

Unfortunately, in August 2004, Marina went back to Naples to live with her parents. Marina paid Rob for his ticket to Thailand because she wanted to go there with her cousin. Rob decided to go on a different vacation with an old friend. They found cheap tickets to Sydney and flew there on December 23rd, 2004.

On December 26th, Rob turned on the TV and saw the news about a huge tsunami. It said that thousands of people were dead in Indonesia and Thailand. He tried to call Marina, but she didn't answer. Happily, a few weeks later, he heard that she was OK. It was a lucky escape.

When I was a child, I lived in the US. My favorite singer was Michael Jackson. I listened to his music all the time. My mother was a piano teacher, and she helped me learn to play his songs, too.

We moved to Columbia when I was 12 because my father wanted to work with a company in Bogotá. We lived there for ten years. I discovered lots of music by Colombian groups: my favorite was a rock and roll group from Cartagena—they were great! I watched them in concert five times in Bogotá. I later learned to play the guitar, and I started my own rock and roll band with some friends. We weren't very good!

Music is still important to me. I sometimes play the drums in a jazz group. I usually listen to jazz or classical music when I drive. I'm a taxi driver, and the music helps me relax in traffic.

91. Which was the second musical instrument the writer learned to play?
a. the drums b. the guitar c. the piano
92. The writer moved to Colombia _____.
a. because his mother wanted to teach in Bogotá b. because he joined a Colombian band
c. because of his father's job
93. The writer learned to play the guitar because _____.
a. his mother helped him b. he wanted to start a band c. he was good at it 94. What type of music does the writer listen to when he wants to relax?
a. jazz and rock and roll b. songs by Michael Jackson c. classical and jazz 95. What is the writer's job?
a. He drives a taxi. b. He's a teacher. c. He works for a Colombian company.

This is a really busy time for my family.

The big news is that Mom is changing jobs. She worked for a company in Atlanta for ten years, but she's starting a new job in an international bank next month. Tomorrow, she's flying to New York to meet her new colleagues.

I play the guitar in a band that I started last year with two friends. Our first concert is next weekend. We're playing in a local club, and lots of people from school are coming to watch, so it's important that we play well. We normally practice once a week, but we're learning new songs now, so we practice in my bedroom for two or three hours every evening.

My sister Rachel is staying with friends this week. Next week, she has a few important university exams, and she can't study with all the noise we're making. After the exams, she's going on vacation with her friends.
